The Presbyterian Supplemental Liturgical Resource (SLR) series includes liturgies that were used on a trial basis in preparation for the development of the Book of Common Worship. Though expressed in the language of the Book of Common Worship, SLR resources remain valuable, both for the variety of liturgical texts they contain and for the commentary on the text, which contains rich historical, theological, and practical background.

Death is Nothing at All Henry Scott Holland 2021-07-12 Grief is extraordinarily complex. How one copes with loss varies from person to person, moment to moment. Sorrows are one’s own. Death is Nothing at All is an illustrated ode to grief, sorrow, loss, pain, resilience, and healing. After losing her daughter, Author Namampa sought out a outlet for the waves of emotions she suffered in the aftermath of her tremendous loss. She created this illustrated book using words she combined from Henry Scott Holland’s moving writings about grief. Death is Nothing at All pays homage to all who’ve been lost and those left grappling with pain, sorrow, and the void left in their lives. This extended version joins Holland’s The King of Terrors with Death is Nothing at All and creates a moving mirror of the shifting emotions and visceral realities of life after loss. It’s Namampa’s hope that the words and accompanying illustrations will provide comfort, inspire healing, and speak to the grief and pain of loss. “Death is nothing at all. It doesn’t count. I have only slipped away into the next room.”

Funeral Hymn John Wesley 1817

Violent Trauma, Culture, and Power Michelle Welsh 2017-02-16 The book is an interdisciplinary exploration of the intersecting impact of violent trauma, culture, and power through case studies of two ministries serving in different demographic contexts within the United States. Mass shootings continue to rise in the United States, including in religious and school contexts, and the U.S. also is ground zero for the new international Black Lives Matter movement. The author shows how forms of violent trauma impact more than individuals—creating criminal-justice practices and relationships of religious and spiritual meaning-making in the aftermath, and shows how these impacts differ according to lived experiences with culture and power. Lounging in the two ministries, an urban-gentrification by minority organization that serves surviving family members in the aftermath of homicide, and a denominational ministry that served a church in the aftermath of a political and religiously motivated shooting, the author develops trauma-specific interdisciplinary tools for lived religious studies. “This book powerfully utilizes an intersectional lens to highlight the inter-interconnections to be found for those working in faith communities, as well as mental health. Welsh provides the reader with an opportunity to explore and develop theoretical and practical perspectives that include race and ethnicity, religion and spirituality, social class and ability, migration, immigration, and refugee status, and explore the impact that oppression and discrimination have on our communities and society. I highly recommend this book for those who are engaged in working to combat domination at the local, national and global levels.”--Gret Rogers, School of Theology, Colgate University, USA
